

Who We Are, What We Eat

Internationally renowned scientist, environmental activist, feminist
VANDANA SHIVA at THE COLLEGE OF NEW JERSEY

Thursday, April 12, 2018

WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

Co-sponsors: Student Finance Board; The Women's Center; Women's, Gender, and Sexuality Studies; Schools of Education, Engineering, Humanities and Social Science, Nursing/Health/Exercise Science, and Science; Center for Innovation and Ethics; Alan Dawley Center for the Study of Social Justice; Center for Community Engaged Learning and Research; Office of Diversity; Office of Leadership; Departments of Sociology/Anthropology, Philosophy, History, World Languages and Cultures, and Biology; Programs in International Studies, Environmental Studies, and Environmental Sustainability Education; Phi Beta Kappa Delta of New Jersey; Ewing Green Team.

11 AM–12:30 PM • Education Building 212

Biotechnology and Food Justice: The Case of GMOs

Dr. Shiva responds to comments from TCNJ's Dr. Leann Thornton (Biology) and Dr. Kevin Michels (Center for Innovation and Ethics)

2–3:30 PM • Education Building 212

Earth Democracy: New Jersey and the World A community dialogue with Vandana Shiva

Local farmers and environmental and food justice organizations share local and global perspectives

5–6:20 PM • Mayo Concert Hall, Music Building

The Transnational Politics of Science, Seeds, Power, and Gender

Dawley Memorial Lecture and book signing

Parking

A map of the TCNJ campus is available at tcnj.pages.tcnj.edu/about/campus-info/campus-map/. For visitor parking, enter campus from Rt 31, turn right on Metzger Drive, and take the second left to the Visitor Booth.